To Correspondents.

OUR Oxford Correspondent will find part of his communication inserted in the present number. At the commencement of our next volume, the article last received will be attended to.

We are sorry that the complexion of the Lines signed A. B. are of such a nature as to oblige us to reject them.

Want of room has occasioned us to defer many articles lately received, although many of our friends will find their requests complied with in the present number.

We feel it an unpleasant task to remind J. C. of the postage. All communications must be sent free to the publisher, or they cannot be attended to.

The first number of the New Volume will be published on the 1st of June next, replete with interesting matter, and enriched with two elegant engravings.
